In this tutorial, we are going to build a book recommendation application. We will cover some basic artificial intelligence concepts (AI) and natural language processing (NLP), as well as web-scraping techniques. Audience: You do not have to be an expert data scientist to be able to follow the steps in this article. It is enough to have a basic understanding of programming languages and NLP. At the end of this tutorial, you will be able to create your cool application. Wit.ai is a NLP interface used to convert human speech or text to structured data. One of its most common uses is to create a chatbot or any other conversation program that interacts with people. It already has NLP algorithms ready to use to form your application. This way, it saves you a lot of time because you don't have to write your own models. In addition to this, it is free for private and commercial use. BeautifulSoup is a powerful Python library used to extract data from HTML and XML documents. It allows us to navigate, search and change data within the document tree. For example, if you want to collect all URLs from a website, you can do it with few lines of code. It is a popular tool for data traction from websites. Let's move in! Before forming our application, let's take a look at some basic Wit.ai concepts and terminology. Utterances are used to teach Wit.ai how to understand your speech or text messages. Learn from the sample input data you provide. The more data is produced, the more accurate will be recognition. For example, a statement can be "What is the current time?" Intent, as their name suggests, are the goals you have in mind. For example, you might want to know what the time is Assign the intent to the predicted pronunciations to indicate what you want to achieve. entities are words or a set of words refer to the same topic. They bring significant information we want to capture from expressions. You can create custom entities or use some of the integrated entities. Wit provides a vast collection of entities, such as the age of a person, a remarkable person, etc. For example, if you type "Who is Madonna?" the program can recognize that you are referring to a remarkable person, in this case, Madonna. Create the Wit application First, you must register your application with your Facebook account. You can use your GitHub account; however, this type of authentication will soon be deprecated. Click the "New App" button to create a new application. I called my BookRecommender.3. Click on "Choose or add Intent" to create a new intent. Type book get and click "+Create intent."4. Now, we have to create entities to solve keywords from incoming pronouncements. To add your entity, go to "Entities" under the menu "Management" and click on "+ Entity." Create a custom entity and name it book keywords.5. Click on "Add a new keyword" to add new keywords. Select the search strategy "Keywords." I decided to group the keywords related to gender by categories. Here is an example of my keywords: Screened by my PC showing keywords book6. Go to the "Understanding" section on the left to add pronunciation. Since this is a book recommendation application, we add phrases like "Find me a supernatural book." You will see that the program will highlight the supernatural word because it recognized it belongs to our list book keywords. Set the book get intent. The "resolved value" should be fancy. Here is a screenshot to give you an idea: Screened by my PC showing keywords. In our case, we want to extract the title, the author and the link.Take a look at a response extract to see how the document appears. In this way, you will have a better understanding of the next actions in our code. Screenshot from my PC that shows part of the answer that you may already notice, this is not a standard HTML file. Contains a script with characters data (Condata). The information we need, like authorname, lies in the basic part. First of all, we want to extract the rumors of the book by finding all the DIV tags containing a bookbox class. In this way, it is easier to face the most significant part of the document. We store the filtered text in the Book_entries variable. With the help of a nice soup, we are traveling the book entries to collect the IDS book. I simote that we are able to identify a book with its identity document, the next step is collecting the information requested for each book. To achieve this, we will use a regular expression scheme (regex). The center of Innerbooktml was like this: the screenshot from my PC showing the inner HTML containing the Datathis book is almost good enough. However, there is a problem - the HTML text has been escaped. Therefore, we cannot yet use a nice soup. First of all, we have to disconnect the HTML code using another regular expression. The final HTML is archived in the Book_Element.once variable we have the valid HTML code, it is easy to extract the information requested using the beautiful soup. To see the results at the end of the program, we use the printing function to view them to the user. 10. Finally, we create the main method to perform our program: note that I set the duration of the recording to four seconds - feel free to change it if you need more time.
